

Slogan Write-Up — Where Global Goods Gather

Slogan Write-Up — “Where Global Goods Gather”

Prepared for the owner and trademark counsel as part of the Trademarks packet. This write-up gathers, in one place, the slogan itself, what it means, how it is used, why it functions as a trademark, and what is needed to file it. Not legal advice — registrability and the filing are counsel's to determine. Current as of 2026-09-06.

1. The slogan

Where Global Goods Gather

- Type of mark: slogan / tagline — filed as a standard-character word mark (protects the wording itself, in any font, size, style, or color).
- Owner / applicant: Ben Vick (confirm the final owning entity before filing).
- Associated brand: Get Goods Gratis (Free) — the slogan is the brand's tagline, typically shown beneath the wordmark/logo.
- Presentation: always in title case — “Where Global Goods Gather” — as four words, unpunctuated.

2. The slogan drawing (for a stylized/design filing, if desired)

If a stylized version is filed in addition to the standard-character word mark, this is the filing-ready drawing — a USPTO-compliant black-and-white image (grayscale, within the 250–944 px range, 350 DPI, under 5 MB). The standard-character word-mark filing needs no drawing; this image is for an optional special-form filing or as a specimen reference.

Where Global
Goods Gather

Where Global Goods Gather — slogan, black-and-white USPTO drawing

Filing-ready source file: `Black and White Images/GGG-slogan-BW-USPTO.jpg`.

3. What it means (brand rationale)

“Where Global Goods Gather” positions the platform as a destination — a single place that brings together goods from around the world. Each element carries weight:

- “Where” frames the brand as a place (a marketplace/destination), not merely a service.
- “Global” signals breadth of selection and international sourcing.
- “Goods” ties directly to the retail/e-commerce identity — physical and digital products.
- “Gather” evokes bringing many things (and many people) together in one place, with a warm, communal tone.

The four-word alliteration on the hard “G” (Global Goods Gather) also echoes the “G³” logo (the three G’s of Get Goods Grat^{is}), tying the slogan to the mark family.

4. How it is used

- Placement: shown as the brand tagline, typically beneath the wordmark/logo — in the site footer, on the sign-in/sign-up screen, and in the logo-plus-slogan lockup.
- Consistency: always the exact wording, in title case, as a brand tagline — a source identifier, not a sentence in body copy.
- Symbol: use ™ on prominent uses now to assert common-law rights; move to ® only after a federal registration issues.

5. Why it functions as a trademark (not merely informational)

Slogans are registrable when they identify and distinguish the source of the goods/services rather than merely conveying information or a common phrase. Points in this slogan's favor, for counsel to assess:

- It is suggestive, not baldly descriptive — it evokes a global marketplace without literally describing the goods or a feature; a consumer must make a small mental leap.
- It is used consistently in a trademark manner (as a tagline tied to the brand and logo), not as an ordinary informational phrase in running text.
- It is not a common, everyday expression that the public would perceive only as generally informational.

Counsel should confirm registrability, run a clearance search, and advise whether it belongs on the Principal Register or may need a showing of acquired distinctiveness.

6. Compliance note (important)

The slogan is a brand tagline about the marketplace — it is never an earnings, income, returns, results, or ROI claim, and must not be used or paired in a way that implies one. This keeps it consistent with the platform's advertising-value (never revenue/ROI) compliance posture. Keep it descriptive of the marketplace experience only.

7. Filing considerations

- Primary filing: standard-character word mark — “Where Global Goods Gather” — the broadest protection for the wording. No drawing or color is claimed.
- Optional additional filing: a special-form/stylized version using the black-and-white drawing above (no color claimed, for broadest coverage — consistent with the marks in this folder).
- Suggested classes (confirm with counsel): 35 (online retail / advertising & marketing services) and 42 (SaaS/software platform); add 9 if tied to the downloadable app.
- Basis: Intent-to-Use (1(b)) if not yet in commerce, else Use (1(a)).
- Specimen (to complete a use-based filing): a real example of the slogan used as a tagline in commerce — the site footer, the sign-in screen, or the store listing where the tagline appears beneath the brand.

8. Cross-references

- `TRADEMARK-FILING-BRIEF.md` — the full list of marks to file (word mark, logo, and this slogan), classes, and filing steps.
- `BRAND-AND-TRADEMARK.md` — the brand reference (name, logo spec, slogan usage) and the black-and-white filing drawings.
- `Black and White Images/GGG-slogan-BW-USPTO.jpg` — the filing-ready slogan drawing.

Prepared for counsel. Not legal advice — availability, registrability, and the filing itself are the attorney's to determine.